

Ed Bray Joins Burnham Benefits as Director of Compliance to Lead Health Care Reform Compliance Efforts

With health care reform now bringing a myriad of new provisions to pass, Burnham Benefits is pleased to augment our long-established compliance program with the addition of Ed Bray, JD, MBA, as Director of Compliance. Bringing Ed into our service-focused benefits practice will ensure that Burnham clients continue to receive top-notch guidance through health care reform.

After beginning his consulting career with Aon, Ed spent the past 11 years working on the employer side, holding management and director-level positions in employee benefits at The First American Corporation, Irvine Company, and Apria Healthcare. Returning to the consulting side with Burnham Benefits, Ed brings valuable and unique experiences with him, helping to further inform the agency's understanding of the challenges that employers face.

Integrating his background in law and employee benefits into Burnham's consulting model, Ed will be establishing and leading our Health Care Reform (HCR) Task Force. This team will be comprised of several Burnham consultants who each bring unique skills and experiences.

With Ed's HCR Task Force in place, Burnham Benefits is well positioned to support your compliance efforts and provide comprehensive guidance regarding any business decisions and implementation actions associated with health care reform.

Over the next few weeks, you will hear more about this Task Force from your Burnham consulting team. You will also begin to see Burnham's health care reform communications branded as HCR Pathways. In the meantime, please visit the Health Care Reform section of the Burnham Benefits website for more information on health care reform. www.burnhambenefits.com
